Communication was with: EPA's David Ostrander with Ben Markus	Representing: Colorado Public Radio
Topic: EPA and Cement Creek/Silverton
General summary of the conversation: Ben asked David questions about mine waste issues in Cement Creek/Animas River, including significant sources, potential remedy and cleanup options, challenges, the SF program, community concerns, and the potential for EPA NPL listing. David's responses focused on what we know and don't know about contaminant sources in the watershed and the fact that information indicates that the WQ problem is significant, will likely require extensive resources, and would be most easily addressed by the type of resources enabled by SF listing. David emphasized our lengthy history working with the community, our desire to have community support for future actions, and the fact that the SF process includes extensive public involvement. David answered question regarding Leadville and "stigma" by indicating that one can find several opinions about EPA in Leadville and that our approach to SF has evolved over time. When asked directly about listing, David indicated no decisions have been made. Also emphasized that we are not opposed to mining, our priority is addressing current contamination. Reporter has also interviewed state, Silverton resident(s) and business interests.
